

STYLE WITHOUT THE STRESS

Take the guesswork out of decorating and find a style that feels like home

When you're unsure what to call your style because you've been over-influenced, don't panic. Bath-based interior designer Lola Swift is here to help you sift through your ideas and guide you towards confident design choices.

You're done scrolling and trying to pin down your style to create a home you love. Many of my clients come to me full of inspiration but unsure how to pull it all together. They know what they like, often with pinterest boards to prove it, but creating a home that feels considered and cohesive can be a challenge.

That's where I come in. Good interior design starts with a clear vision, shaped by thoughtful choices and confident decisions. It's not about giving up control; it's about gaining clarity. I help filter through the noise, refine your ideas, and guide you toward a home that feels right, works well and reflects your personal style, with plenty of texture, colour and character along the way.

One client said it best:

'I don't think I had a really clear vision, and that's why I reached out for help. There are so many choices in the interior design world, and so many wonderful pictures. Pinterest can feel like a rabbit hole you can spend hours going down. But if you don't do it all the time, it's really hard to hone in on getting the right choices and the right combination of things. And I don't have a lot of time to put into it.'

This feeling is common. With endless options for colours, finishes and furnishings, decision fatigue sets in fast. But with the right support, we turn your ideas into something clear, something that feels like you, but elevated. My design services are tailored to each client and space, with a focus on thoughtful interiors that work beautifully for everyday life.

If you have a project in mind, I'd love to help.
